

Non-Fiction/Memoir

What does it feel like to turn Air Force fighter jets for a living?

Library Distribution (exclusive):
Quality Books, Inc.
(800)323-4241 Stock # 1120543

Online sales and trade distribution:
<http://www.jjetspress.com>

Title: One Desert Jet Turner
Author: Earl Heron
Edition: 1st
CIP/LC: 00-134979
ISBN: 0-9704189-0-6
Pages: 232, 8.5X11
Extensive bibliography and index
Large format trade
paperback
Price: $26.95 US
$42.00 Canada
Publisher: Jets Press, NY
Publication date:
November 2002

Learn about the temperament of fighter aircraft, fighter pilots, and fighter mechanics. Follow the transition from civilian, to aircraft maintenance student, to Cold War participant. This aviation-career book details how these experiences expanded the author's perception of airborne and ground fighter jet operations.

"...Heron's attempt to shed light on an aspect of the community that too oft goes unnoticed [maintenance] is noteworthy, and his experiences and perspective provide a great number of points to reflect on, particularly for those of us endowed with our own set of wings..."

—Jeremy Jankowski, avweb.com

Photo Leif Rodriguez

Author Earl Heron enlisted in the U.S. Air Force in the spring of 1980. He served three years as an F-4 and F-16 mechanic at Nellis Air Force Base, Las Vegas, Nevada, before accumulating more than 900 flying hours as a flight engineer on the C-130 at Pope AFB, Fayetteville, North Carolina. After six years in the Air Force, he left the military to complete a baccalaureate degree in technology and management. He holds the FAA Airframe & Powerplant (A&P) mechanic certificate.

JETS PRESS™

(718) 740-2079